The opening course of English Honours deals with British poetry from Anglo-Saxon to Seventeenth Century. It is useful to students concerned with English literature in multifarious ways. Poetry gives students a healthy outlet for surging emotions. The first unit enhances their knowledge on particular aspects of the literary history of British poetry, its socio-economic background and development from its Anglo-Saxon beginnings to the Seventeenth Century through milestones like Chaucer's works, the Renaissance, Puritanism and the Civil War. A selection of an entire range of representative works of major poets of this span, comprises the second unit. It seeks to exploit the advantages of a broadly based interdisciplinary approach towards British poetry. An exploration of the poems helps gaining an idea of the development of literary conventions of British poetry through the ages, with relation to history and culture. The mystifying nature of the poems, resisting easy interpretation, offers the graduating learners an opportunity of achievement in analysis and critical reasoning. The last unit provides important information about the basics of Rhetoric and Prosody, mentoring students to appreciate poetry beyond a sentence's literal word meaning.

The paper is divided into three units with reference to the literary genres of prose and drama that were produced between the Anglo-Saxon Period and the Seventeenth Century.

Unit I of the paper incorporates the elements related to the Socio-Literary elements of the aforementioned period in focus. It has discussions on the origin and development of British Prose and Drama and the role of the growth of the Press. It also focuses on the literary growth and impact of the University Wits and the growth of the Revenge Tradition in Drama as also the growth of the Comedy of Manners and the Comedy of Humours. It is hoped that through this discussion as part of the learning outcome the students would be able to have an in-depth overview of the socio-literary aspects of this era which in turn would help the students to move forward in their study of English Literature in future.

Unit II of the paper has two representative components related to British Prose and includes the texts of three of Francis Bacon's essays and Aphra Behn's "Oroonoko". As part of the learning outcome it is hoped that the study of these texts would initiate the students towards the flavours of British Prose and would in turn help them later on when they shall be either dealing with a variety of essays or non-fiction works.

The paper wishes to introduce to the students the works of William Shakespeare and equip the students with sonnet writing and the plays of Shakespeare. It is hoped that by studying these texts the students shall be able to bring about a qualitative approach in the understanding of Shakespearean plays. At the same time this syllabus wishes to link up the students with the other plays of Shakespeare which shall be studied in the M.A. course.

Unit I brings to the students the nuances of sonnet writing by Shakespeare and it is hoped that by studying a cross-section of these sonnets the students would become sensitized enough to understand the differences between Shakespearean sonnets and those by other sonneteers of note which they study in CC 101.

Units II and III pick out two plays of great note by Shakespeare. The picking of Macbeth and Twelfth Night shall offer to the students the spectrum of Shakespearean drama and its various shades and create greater awareness on Shakespearean plays moving forward and at the same time sensitize the students on the estimation of Shakespearean plays vis-à-vis other parts of English drama.

This paper enlightens students with the major socio-economic changes like industrialization, urbanization and confrontation of Darwin's Theory of Evolution, as it develops in the Victorian Age, the influence of which the nineteenth century poems and novels were unable to escape. A study of the social and literary history of the Victorian world like the Industrial Revolution, the Reform Laws or the Pre-Raphaelite Movement, will assist in identifying the socio-economic-political contexts that inform the literature of the period. Students will here come across the poetry that is characteristic of the Victorian period – structures like the dramatic monologue – My Last Duchess of Robert Browning, celebration of the Victorian temper of high spirit, energy and resolution in Tennyson's Ulysses, poems expressing 'Crisis of Faith' like Matthew Arnold's Dover Beach etc. Students will also discover how novel grew and experimented with plot, character and perspective through reading of such representative examples of the realistic Victorian fiction as Dickens' Hard Times or Hardy's The Return of the Native. Students will decipher how Victorian novels closely followed not only the social concerns of the period like factory life and condition of workers but was also linked with the expansion of Colonialism and Capitalism.

The students are introduced to a rich and diverse literature through exploration of Indian and European classical texts in English translation. The knowledge of the eco-socio-political-cultural context of the age that produced the texts enable the students to historically situate the classical literature and diverse literary cultures from India and Europe. Natyashastra and Poetics enable to explore the central concerns of Sanskrit drama and dramatic theory respectively. They lay a foundation in Indian and European poetics, theories of representation, aesthetics, aspects of theatre etc. Selections from Ilango's Cilapattikaram, Mrichchhakatika of Sudraka, Homer's The Iliad and Sophocles' Oedipus Rex introduce students to multiple genres and forms, offering a wide-ranging perspective on the artistic, philosophical, and social concerns of classical literature. The paper teaches how to develop ability to pursue research in the field of classics. Now he/ she can appreciate the pluralistic and inclusive nature of Indian and European classical literature and their attributes along with valuing cross-cultural aesthetics.

The course aims to help students from non-English literature backgrounds to develop a vital understanding of how discourses and assumptions of gender govern and carve our very lives, experiences, emotions and choices. The course exposes students to an extensive range of literary and textual materials from diverse historical periods and contexts, so that they are able to investigate the socially-constructed nature of gendering. It will introduce students to the major critical approaches to literature that feminist theorists have devised to understand ‘woman’ as a single or variable entity in literature. The concept of gender as a cultural category – ideologies such as feminisms, masculinities, and transgenderism – will make students perceive the complexity of social and biological constructions of manhood and womanhood and how it is constructed in literature. Knowledge of the astonishing range of feminism in literature of all ages and culture along with the ways in which they embody a politics of resistance, is offered through writings of Begum Rokeya, Mahasweta Devi, Virginia Woolf and Sylvia Plath. There can be no better representation of female experience in literature than in such representative texts as The Degradation of Women or A Room of One’s Own or poems of Plath. This course sensitizes students to gender assumptions in literary texts facilitating a comprehension of the link between the status of woman to social discrimination and social change. The learners will explore issues of women’s experience, women’s work, selfhood and representation in the texts prescribed.

This course has the objective of developing competency to critically appreciate the process of translation in a multi linguistic and multicultural country like India. The basic concepts related to translation will clarify the process, modes, equivalence adopted in translation. A critical examination of translated literary/non-literary texts like Thakurmar Jhuli and William Radice's translation of Tagore's poems aids in assessing, comparing, and reviewing translations. The concept of the politics of translation can be comprehended by students through such meticulous probing into the theory and practice of translation skills.

Unit I:

Basic Concepts

Source Language Text, Target Language text, Literary Translation, Non-Literary Translation, Machine Translation, Free Translation, Cultural Equivalence, Translator's Visibility, Translator's Invisibility, Translation as Treason, Translation as Discovery, Postcolonial Translation

(Three short answer type questions of 5 marks each to be attempted out of five: 5x3 = 15)

Unit II:

Translator's Experience

- a. Roy, Sukhendu (Tr). Tales From Thakurmar Jhuli: Translator's Note. Oxford University Press.
- b. William Radice (Tr). Rabindranath Tagore. Selected Poems: Translator's Introduction. Penguin.

(Five questions of 1 mark each to be attempted out of eight: 1x5 = 5)

Five questions of 2 marks each to be attempted out of eight: 2x5 = 10

One question of 10 marks to be attempted out of three : 10x1 = 10)

This paper takes a look at the socio-literary aspects of the early part of the Twentieth century. The various socio-literary and socio-cultural shifts have been discussed in this paper. The paper has been divided into three Units.

Unit I takes a look at the various important socio-historical events that took place in the early part of the 20th century, somewhat as a logical extension of what has been done earlier in the paper related to the Victorian Age. At the same time this Unit wishes to bring to the students the various Social and Art Movements that took place during this time and then wishes to show to the students as to how these socio-cultural movements influenced the growth of British Literature in the early part of the 20th century. It is hoped that through such discussions on a panoramic course of events the students would have a wider vision on the literary growth of the times and the reasons behind the growth of various literary movements of the Age.

Unit II is almost an extension of Unit I and discusses the major poetic texts of the times by referring to a cross-section of poets. It is hoped that through such knowledge the students would become better equipped to understand the various nuances of poetic writing of the period.

Unit III pores into fiction. It is hoped that the theoretical paradigms of Psychoanalysis and the literary history of the growth of the Stream of Consciousness Novel technique discussed in Unit I would be understood better by reading Virginia Woolf's Mrs Dalloway. At the same time the students would be enriched by studying the short stories by two other prominent writers of the era Joyce and Conrad.

Unit I:

This course presents students to Twentieth century English and European drama, depicting the crucial role of drama in the introduction and shaping of modernity. The continent of Europe and its literature went through significant changes since the Renaissance. One should note that by the turn of the century, the European avant-garde had thoroughly modified the theatre – which at this juncture, seems to evolve into a pan-European phenomenon, with stylistic/technical innovations and thematic experimentations. The early phase of this period was dominated by realism. The radical turns away from it, soon followed. The study of masterpieces from Norway, Germany, Romania and England will acquaint the students with the European historical and cultural situation in this period and understand concepts like realism, naturalism, symbolism, expressionism, the Avant Garde, the epic theatre etc. The student can get an idea of the transformation, both in the socio-political and the literary fields across different national cultures in Europe by studying the prescribed plays.

Unit I:

Literary and Social History:

Socio-Political Change and the Stage, European Drama: Realism and Beyond, The Problem Play in the Modern Era, The Theatre of the Absurd.

This paper introduces students with some of the key ideas and texts of Western literary criticism from Greco-Roman antiquity to the modern period. Students will get familiarized with the intellectual shifts in the reading of culture, language and literature. Thereafter learners can be expected to become conversant with examining the implications of ideas (e.g. mimesis or imagination), and orientations (classicism, romanticism and modernism) that have marked the history of literary criticism. The paper is drafted in such a manner that students get the opportunity to study principal concepts associated with the names of significant thinkers in this history. The paper comprises three parts – Section I dealing with concepts framed by Aristotle and Dr Johnson, Section II with Romantic criticism of Wordsworth and Keats and Section III Modern criticism of T.S. Eliot and Matthew Arnold. A learning of a wide range of literary philosophers and critics, whose works had informed and shaped the discourse of literary criticism, will strengthen the interpretative skills of learners and make it possible to apply various theoretical frameworks and concepts to literary and cultural texts.

Trans linguistic in nature, the course focuses on Indian ‘Bhasa’ texts that have been translated and adapted in English, and have thereby acquired a new exemplar. The course intends to widen its horizons through recognition of the cultural interanimations and cross fertilization between English and the ‘Bhasas’. A study of poems of Kaif Azmi, Nirendranath Chakraborty or Subramania Bharti will promote exploring the space where literary creations between languages, and cultures are revealed. An exploration of Indian subjectivities, histories and politics can be located in the prose fiction of Premchand, Ismat Chughtai and Premendranath Mitra. Ethics being an integral part of the Indian culture, an allegory to the destruction of human lives and wilful blindness to ethical values is presented in Dharamveer Bharti’s Andha Yug, which will be a happy discovery for learners. The impact of significant literary movements on Indian authors, the politics of translation and the historical trajectories of texts are worth appreciation. Students are given the scope to engage creatively in the cultural heritage of Indian literary tradition as well as develop a grip on the contemporary literary forms and issues. With the study of this course the students are certainly to get an overall view of the contribution of the notable Indian authors in building the notions of nation and nationalism.

The travel writer is an adventure lover and Travel Writing appreciates the role of travel in developing selfhood and relate it to regional, national and global identities. Travel writing is one of the most favourite, appealing and profitable genres of nonfiction. It calls for a variety of writing skills like alluring dialogue, point of view, use of factual detail, character development and scene-by-scene construction. The present course designs the social-historical-political-economic contexts of Travel Writing from regional, national and global perspectives. The course proceeds by the reading and analysis of classic travel pieces of Ibn Batuta, Mark Twain and Krishnabhabini Das which present Travel Writing as an alternative history or supplement to historical writing. An analysis of the narrative, fictional and literary devices used in travel writing, an examination of and practice with different information gathering designs, a study of the use of humour and unique voice, will engage students in a critical understanding of how a traveller's impressions change the perspectives of a place.

The epoch of modern literature marks the cultivation of avant-garde theory within poetry, novel and theatre, making it self-conscious, and experimental – representative of important trends, critical shifts and formal experimentations. The impact of social-historical-political-economic contexts – along with contemporary philosophy, ideas and art movements like expressionism, Marxism, the Absurd etc, reverberate in modern literature post World War II. These enriched innovations, both in form and content, bring out the different facets of human experience and literary technique. Representative texts ranging from poetry of Philip Larkin and Carol Anne Duffy to works of Samuel Beckett and William Golding justify the social-historical-political changes post World War II, marking the end of colonialism and the rise of multiculturalism and postmodernist aesthetics.

This paper brings to the students one of most interesting yet chequered phases of post-modernist history, that is, the post-colonial era. The paper brings to the students a reading of the various socio-cultural, socio-political and literary dimensions of the era. On one hand the it is hoped that by studying this paper the students shall be able to understand a part of the theoretical aspects behind the study of Post Colonial Literatures that have taken place in the erstwhile British colonies, while on the other hand the texts incorporated in this paper shall bring about a practical application of the various theoretical paradigms.

Unit I of this paper brings to the students the socio-literary background of the study of Post Colonial Literatures. Keeping in mind the vastness of the topic parts of two important seminal texts have been chosen and certain key areas of the theoretical paradigms are learnt by the students from these texts. It is hoped that these theoretical paradigms shall help the students to progress better when they graduate to their Master degree programs.

Unit II of this paper has Drama and Poetry while Unit III has fiction pertaining to Post Colonial Literatures. By studying these texts it is hoped that the learning of such texts shall enhance the overall orientation of the student and link up with further readings in the M.A. Course

This paper introduces to the students the various nuances of the critical field of Literary Theory. While studying literature today it is almost mandatory to have a critical perspective and a working knowledge of various critical theoretical paradigms is almost the way to move forward. In this context therefore the study of this paper becomes very important. The paper has been framed in such a way so that the following learning outcomes may be realized:

- Having a working knowledge of the various critical literary theories like Marxism, Feminism, Culture Studies etc.
- To create awareness among the students as to how such theories might be implemented in the reading/re-reading of various literary texts.
- To create a bridge with the M.A. course of various Universities as and when the students move forward in life.
- To equip them to handle the writing of dissertations or research papers in future.

The Partition of India is one of the most critical phases of world history. The Partition of the land was not only a political decision but also had monumental socio-cultural echoes and ramifications. In context of such political and socio-economic decision-making, literature too has responded by creating a huge corpus of work which brings to us the trauma, emotions and human factors involving the Partition of the Indian subcontinent. It is hoped that by studying this paper the following learning outcomes shall be achieved:

- Understand the human involvement of the Partition of the Indian subcontinent
- The launch an inquest into a whole new sub-genre of literature.

This paper focuses on the study of the one of the neglected sub-genres of literature. The writing of an autobiography is a most difficult art as it involves allowing the public at large to peer into the professional and private life of an individual. The study of this literary sub-genre thus can open out to the students the following learning outcomes:

- The appreciation of the life and times of individuals.
- Linking individual lives with wider socio-cultural and socio-economic concerns.
- Creating an awareness on the difficulties and strengths of this sub-genre.

This paper brings to the students the various configurations of the study of texts of two most interesting sub-genres—Science Fiction and Detective Fiction. While Science Fiction opens the mind of the individual to a world where the scientific and the imaginative cohabit, Detective Fiction takes the readers to a world of intense inquest and involves the sharpness of the individual mind. The study of these areas therefore brings to the students a wide variety of appreciation of literary texts. It is hoped that by studying these two sub-genres the students would appreciate the deeper thoughts that are involved while studying these texts and sub-genres.
